I enjoyed the parallel stories from the two sisters in Gill Paul's "No Place For A Lady". Lucy is the younger sister who marries an army Captain known only briefly and sets out with him to war in the Crimea. Dorothea, the older sister, desperate to find Lucy after months of no word, applies to be a nurse with Florence Nightingale.

This was no place for a lady! The danger of Indian attack in the Dakota and Montana Territories was always real. Thomas S Calhoun, as clerk on the str Ida Stockdale, wrote home in 1867 that they " were treated to a volley of arrows. One struck the chimney and fell to the deck, and one struck the spar and stuck into it. "
